MOOD:  nervous

According to Wabbit and Wonder Woman, I can't go another 24 hours into life without having seen The Duchess of Duke Street. I asked if there are explosions or anything, and Wabbit patted my hand. Gulp.

So, tonight after work W and WW will address the problem. Which apparently requires cheese straws and wine. Gulp.

Don't spoiler me. I'm going in.

This looks like a good idea.

This.

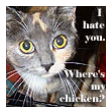

...

Little guy's not bad.

Gotta teach RHex to smear.

COLLAPSE

Out of left-field theatre: I strongly resonate with this comment!

My manners became exponentially more formal and evident once my eldest reached the age of being ready to use word please.

Also, please elucidate an impoverished Canadian -- what is a cheese straw?!

*waves* Hi. Miss ya!

I think I've heard the title before, but I don't know anything else about it.

Wabbit patting my hand does not sound like a particularly bad thing to me. OTOH, you know her better than I do.

BTW, have you seen the Google Earth Engine demo? They've taken Landsat imagery since 1984 and made it available as time-lapse movies. There's a cool sample on their main page showing just how fast Las Vegas has grown. (Also kinda scary, when you think about it.)

I was there for a lot of the Vegas growth.

There's a spot on the hill on the way to Moapa where I used to stand, and you could see it grow every month or so.

Now, of course... things are different.
